General Remarks

The applicant has corrected several confusing terminology clerical errors, and has corrected several forward references in the specification text.

In addition, the applicant has rewritten all claims to define the invention more distinctly and patentably over prior art that might be cited during prosecution.

Two physical pages have been provided for each page of the original specification that is being modified. One page shows the original, with markups. The second page contains revised text. Complete pages have been provided to make it easy to amend the original documents.
